

"Those Who Work the Night"

There are those who work at night
Who walk the halls to keep things right;
They're never seen in halls of fame,
And seldom are they known by name.
Their shifts are long, their work is hard,
And stress is often their reward;
They see more suff'ring than us all,
But they still answer to each call.
When we're in need they will respond,
And with our fam'lies form a bond;
They help us in our times of pain
And comfort and reduce our strain.
Their presence brings to us relief;
Their thoughtful words help us in grief;
They serve all people of mankind;
Their value cannot be defined.
